Dear Aleksander Gasieniec

Work visa under a Working Holiday Scheme

I am pleased to inform you that your application for a work visa under a Working Holiday Scheme has been approved.

Your work visa

Details of your work visa are at the bottom of this letter. You must print a copy and present it to a Customs officer. Your work visa enables you to travel to and enter before .

Your working holiday will activate on the first day you enter . You should therefore travel to only when you are ready to start your working holiday.

You must leave before your work visa expires. However, if you wish to extend your stay in you may apply for another type of temporary visa or for residence, if eligible. If you were granted a work visa for 12 months under the United Kingdom Working Holiday cheme, you may apply for the balance of 11 months under this scheme. To find out more on the options available, please visit our website.

Travel conditions

The travel conditions (listed at the end of this message) on your visa allow you to re-enter multiple times after first entry.

Terms and conditions of your work visa

It is important that you read the terms and conditions on your work visa carefully as well as the instructions below.

You must show a copy of this letter to a customs officer when you first arrive (and when you wish to re-enter New Zealand)

You must declare that you are applying for a work visa when you complete your arrival card.

You must have evidence of funds for your maintenance in and if you do not have an onward or return ticket, evidence of further funds for the purchase of this ticket.

You may also be asked to provide evidence of any other conditions that you were required to meet as part of the working holiday scheme under which you submitted your application.

Liability for deportation and appeal rights

It is your responsibility to remain on a valid visa at all times. If you remain in after your visa has expired, you will become unlawful and will be liable for deportation. If you have grounds to appeal and wish to appeal against your liability for deportation, you may appeal on humanitarian grounds no later than 42 days after first becoming unlawful in , to the Immigration and Protection Tribunal (the Tribunal). Further information on how to lodge an appeal to the Tribunal are available at the Tribunal's website www.justice.govt.nz/tribunals.

If you are deported from you may be subject to a period of prohibition from re-entering . A person who has been deported cannot return to until they have repaid any costs relating to their deportation.

If you become unlawful and depart New Zealand voluntarily before being served with a deportation order you will not be subject to a period of prohibition, however your immigration history will be taken into account in any future visa applications.

Your passport details

Your passport details will be checked when you arrive in . They must be the same details you provided on your online application.

Employment in New Zealand

When you find a job in , you must show your work visa to your employer as evidence that you have permission to work in .

We have put together a list of websites with information on employment opportunities, travel planning and entertainment to help you plan your working holiday. We may also e-mail you with information on temporary employment opportunities in .
